A good many years ago an old Hasaiah accumulated considerable cash through the sale of beel cattle, and not celling that it would be secure in a spot annex, buried his treasure in a spot anown only to himself. When on his cath-bed he called Mr. A. S. Wilcox o his side and told him of the buried treasurer, but not its locality, promising, however, to impart that information the next day. During the hight he died, and his secret died with him.

Several months ago, a Porto Rican ity the name of Cypriano, who had been working on the Libue plantation (pit his job, and at the same time informed his associates that he had found a lot of buried money. They attempted to make him divide by threats and demands, but to no purpose. Cyp-
